Good morning, Guttman!

I’ve discovered that wearing a mask in muggy weather is even less fun than wearing a mask on cool and dry days! However, I hope this update finds you breathing and feeling well. At this morning’s meeting we discussed the following:

- On Saturday, June 20, the Governor’s Office issued guidelines for re-opening colleges and universities after Phase 4 begins. I’m attaching the guidelines for your perusal here. You’ll notice that CUNY submits one plan for the entire system. We do not know when NYC will go into Phase 4, but some are projecting the end of July. This does NOT mean that CUNY and Guttman will be re-opening for in-person instruction. CUNY still hasn’t announced, but we are continuing to plan for online instruction.
- It is the third day of classes for Spring 2. The ADD period has been extended through today, and advisors are busy.
- Orientation is off to a good start.
- Nila and Elie both recommend that folks engage in the orientation sessions for CUNY’s new EAP (program). Elie sent out an email last week giving the times/days.
- Alia reported that the FYE institute is off to a great start.
- Donovan reported that we now have 769 students who have committed for the Fall. Again, do not think this means we will have that many students. There is always a melt factor.

That’s it for now! We will meet again tomorrow and I’ll be in touch soon after.

All best to you,

Linda
